The Research, Production and Extension (RPE) Division is headed by the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (RPE) who steers and manages research, innovation and extension activities, supported by the Research Development and Advisory Board [8] as the main governance board whose membership is drawn from across the university and industry.

The Research development and Advisory Board plays an advisory role to the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Research, Production & Extension) on the following matters:

1. Research infrastructure development and formulation of appropriate policies;
2. Research planning, coordination, administration, logistical support;
3. Potential grant sources;
4. Protection of intellectual assets, commercialization, dissemination and publication;
5. Strategic alliances with government, industry, local and international research institutes;
6. Management of research libraries and archives;
7. Research branding setting research standards and benchmarking research quality assurance/control, research risk assessment and capacity building;
8. Coordination of seminars, consultancies, workshops, conferences and symposia;
9. Management of research contracts and consultancies; and
10. Management of University research fund, extension and outreach services.
